VARSITY TO STAGE
-A GERMAN PLAY

One of the Funniest Comedy Sketches in Any Language is Selected: Rehearsals Soon to Begin.

An ambitious undertaking on the part of the students in German at the university is being taken up and will, it is expected, reach its consummation during the forthcoming commencement week. The project is the presentation of a comedy sketch entitled in the German language, "Ein Knopf". "A Button", having been chosen as the best and funniest thing that can be found in any tongue. Parts have been assigned and rehearsals will be held beginning this week until commencement.

The story relates the amusing adventures of two absent-minded professors, one of whom becomes married, and in order to remember his affection for his wife wears a red button on his vest. During the complications of the plot the button is lost, and with it the fond memories of his spouse, so that by end of trouble arises. The play will appeal to our German population, which is substantial in numbers and citizenship in the city, and will interest everyone who loves comedy for its own sake.

If present plans are carried out the show will be put on at the same night the school of music presents its annual cantata. A Spanish play was first considered by the students but for the sake of novelty "Ein Knopf" was adopted.

REHEARSALS BEGIN FOR THE ANNUAL PLAN

Rehearsals began at the university last night under the direction of Miss Frost, of the department of expression, on the university annual plan. It is the intention of the committee in charge to secure a list of patronesses for the play as has been the custom in the past.

MOTORCYCLE RIDER HAD NO LICENSE

Young Man Has Automobile License But Court Holds This Does Not Cover Other Machines.

Elbert McSpadden learned in police court this morning the sad consequences of motor-cycle speeding, when Justice Craig fined him five chips for his ignorance of the license game. McSpadden lives in the suburbs and came to the city with his pop-cycle yesterday to try the fine boulevards.

His joy had subsided when he was ushered before the justice and heard his charge.

"You are charged with crossing the violin on a motorcycle," said Judge Craig.

A gleam of hope lighted the prisoner's eye.

"Not guilty," he said. "I tried to cross the violin, but I didn't do it. This gentleman (Policeman Pablo Lujan) wouldn't permit me. He will testify to that."

"Then you are guilty of trying to cross the violin," said the justice, thoughtfully removing a smile. "Let's see your license."

"Here it is, Judge." There was a near-confidence in his voice.

"Why that's an automobile license. What's that for?"

"Well, I used to own an automobile, No. 82, but I sold it."

"Where is the number?"

"On the machine I guess."

"The law requires that they get a new one. You have no license or none for your wheel."

"Well," said the justice, "you are guilty on three charges: Riding on the violin approach, riding without a license for yourself, and riding a wheel that is not registered. Just pay down five dollars, then go and get those licenses. Then go and tell the purchaser of your machine that he will have to get a number of his own. And one more thing: next time you come to town don't try to make Pablo Lujan try to think your motorcycle is an automobile."

Two workmen, one of them a native, and two women of the half-world were committed to the cages for fifteen days each in default of money to pay their fines of ten dollars per day. They pleaded guilty under one of the clauses of the vagrancy law of illegitimately occupying rooms in an up-town hotel.

NEGLIGENCE ON PART OF BOTH

Coroner's Jury Places Blame for Death of Eugenio Barela Partially on Deceased and on Railroad.

After visiting the scene of the fatal accident to Eugenio Barela yesterday afternoon, the coroner's jury endeavored to inquire into the causes of his death rendered a verdict the effect of which was to place the blame for the accident equally on the railroad company and the deceased.

The evidence at the hearing before Justice McCallister yesterday afternoon tended to show that the approaches to the crossing where Barela was killed were of such a character that it would be impossible for one coming up towards the track in the direction in which the deceased was going to see an approaching train at any distance up the track. It also appeared that Mr. Barela and lived in the vicinity for many years, was accustomed to crossing the tracks at that place and knew of the nature of the crossing. These facts doubtless caused the jury to render the verdict that they did. The verdict was as follows:

"We, the undersigned justice of the peace and jury, who sat at the inquest on the body of Eugenio P. Barela, find that the deceased came to his death by being struck by the A. T. & S. F. Railroad company's train, No. 7, on the 27th day of March, 1911. We find negligence on the part of the deceased in not being more careful at the railroad crossing, also ensure the railroad company for not having wagon road up to grade over their right of way, and we recommend the ditch bank be cut down to level with the railroad company's roadbed."

Two workmen, one of them a native, and two women of the half-world were committed to the cages for fifteen days each in default of money to pay their fines of ten dollars per day. They pleaded guilty under one of the clauses of the vagrancy law of illegitimately occupying rooms in an up-town hotel.

ARIZONA-COLORADO TO CANE HANDS

German Copper Company to Acquire Control of Prosiner Which Is Now Idle.

Globe, Ariz., April 4.—The German Copper company, which was organized here recently, is to take over the old Arizona-Colorado company's properties at an early date. The new company was organized with a capital of $3,000,000, divided into 600,000 shares, having a par value of $5 per share, with Joseph W. Bandhauer of Globe, and Charles H. Zellner and Charles H. Trotter of Indianapolis, Ind., as incorporators. The new company will take over the properties of the Arizona-Colorado Belt Gold Mining and Milling company, known locally as the Arizona-Colorado, about two miles north of the Old Dominion mine. The property now has a 999-foot shaft and about 1,200 feet of cross cutting and drifting. The ore body developed at the 800-foot level is about 80 feet long and 12 feet wide with every indication of growing larger as the work of development progresses. The property is idle now but a force of men will be put at work in 30 days.

All the old stockholders of the old company may exchange their holdings for the stock of the new company upon payment of five per cent par value to meet transfer charges. All of the cash and unused stock in the treasury of the old company passes to the treasury of the new concern.

TUS WORSE THAN A SPRING POEM

Grass is growing, flowers are blooming, orchards are buzzing with bees sipping nectar from opening blossoms, fish are biting in polluted streams and Easter millinery is displayed in the shop windows. The man with a few yards of surface on his back premises is studying seed catalogues and the old hen with six chicks at her busy heels is getting her scratching apparatus in rapid order. The small boy already has a toy stone bruise on his heel and the base ball fan has come out of winter retirement. All these things indicate that gentle spring is at hand and it is just about time to shake the winter flannels.—El Paso Times.
